

Client: UNICEF

Publication: Stylephile.com

Date: March 21, 2007

Website Views: 7073

Water Works

You know those basic needs we have like air, water and food? We should probably try to protect those resources, especially since today is World Water Day. 290 NYC restaurants ranging from the BLT eateries to Gramercy Tavern to Katz's Deli are participating in UNICEF's Tap Project, which urges patrons to donate $1 for their generally free tap water. Socially conscious Hollywooders like Mary Louise Parker and Peter Sarsgaard are supporters of the cause. In fact, UNICEF ambassador Sarah Jessica Parker hosted a launch event for Tap Project last night at Hearst Tower. Proceeds go towards UNICEF's programs to promote clean drinking water for children around the world. Events across the globe can be found on the World Water Day website. Talk about a dollar and a dream. $1, Participating Restaurants: tapproject.org, worldwaterday.org